Selection into the training programme is governed by the principles of equal opportunity, and will be based solely on merit. Applicants will not be discriminated against on the grounds of age, gender, marital status, sexual orientation, race, religion, or State of residence. Only those applicants who meet the entrance criteria will be considered for appointment to the ACPS surgical training programme. Where the ACPS is unable to identify a sufficient number of qualified candidates to fill the quota of positions in any given year, places will remain vacant.

Applicants must be familiar with the "Eligibility Selection Process for Surgical Training Post" document before lodging this application for with the ACPS office.
